

Is chocolate really 'bad' for you?

In the Summer term, Blue Class will be looking at chocolate!

We will be asking what are the ingredients and origin of chocolate, exploring the Ancient Aztec roots to modern day cocoa farmers. We will write reports on our findings and visit the Eden Project to complete a Chocology Workshop.

Using our facts learned at the beginning of term, we will design a healthy eating game including pop-up facts.

Inspired by our knowledge of the Aztecs, we will complete a drum workshop and look at the link between modern and ancient drumming.

To end the term, we will also be inquiring into whether chocolate is only good for eating, looking at the philanthropic side of industry from Cadbury's to Fair Trade. We will also explore modern design and sculpture to help us to plan and make a showstopping cake! The cakes will be sold at the Farmer's Market with all proceeds going to the children's charity of choice.
